Professional, regional artisans will have their talents on display when the Arts & Crafts Spring Show returns this May. Presented by the Montgomery Arts Council, this year's two-day indoor event spotlights local community talent in woodwork, textiles, glass, ceramics, fine arts and much more.

"We are excited to provide a platform to these prodigiously talented creatives for our Arts & Crafts Spring Show," said Mayor Neena Singh. "We will continue taking every opportunity to support local artisans, while presenting our residents with some of the most talented work in the region."

Now in its fourth year as a subcommittee of the Montgomery Economic Development Commission, the Montgomery Arts Council has been hosting events spotlighting the rich community of local and regional artists since the council's first gallery in 2021. The Arts &

Crafts Show, along with Return to Art in the fall, are the council's two tentpole events that showcase the professional caliber of artistic talent found throughout the Montgomery area.

"The council's goal is to present the wealth of high-level creativity in Montgomery, and that is exactly what this event does," said Montgomery Arts Council Chair Karen Tuveson. "Not only will it allow our residents to enjoy incredible works of craftsmanship, but it also serves as a terrific opportunity for participating artisans to showcase their abilities in front of a wider audience."
